Description

This is an amazing quality antique Victorian burr walnut dressing table, with a twin pedestal design and a central hinged mirror, circa 1860, in excellent original condition. The Victorian dressing table, retains the original central rectangular mirror, encased in a moulded frame, secured by the original brass ball hinges screws. The angle of the mirror can be adjusted. The mirror is supported by a pair of finely carved supports above a central well, flanked by two pedestal chests. The central well features a working drawer with working lock and key and bears the makers stamp for Heals & Son London a very reputable cabinet maker. The two pedestals incorporating five graduated drawers each; decorated with stunning burr walnut detail, retaining the original turned knobs. The drawer linings are constructed of solid mahogany with hand dove-tailed construction and quarter beading. The Victorian dressing table stands on the original moulded plinths and hidden iron and mug castors. The can be removed for transport and is easily installed with two original brass wing nuts. The dressing table, is in excellent original condition, having been cleaned and French polished by h...
