Description

1 Fine Large Early 17th Century Oil Painting Portrait Important Dutch Golden Age Merchant Gentleman. Three quarter length front profile view portrait of a wealthy bearded Dutch Merchant Gentleman. He is wearing an elaborate wide white ruff lace collar cuffs and having a sumptuous black costume which is the highest fashion for the period and indicated the sitter is of significant importance and wealth in Dutch society. He has such a powerful pose by his standing posture with 1 arm leaning over a table and his other hand placed on his hip, he is looking directly at the viewer. He has a well groomed brown beard & hair. You can see he is wearing a gold ring on his little finger and is wearing a chained loop belt. Furthermore to the top right section of the painting is a fabulous cartouche containing winged cherubs on either side with a pictorial of a key, which is so unusual & intriguing. Oil on canvas. Hanging wire thread on the back ready for immediate home wall display. Latin inscription Atatis Suae 39, Ani 1625. Unsigned by A Dutch School artist. Circa 17th century dated 1625, the sitters age is also stated as being 39 in his prime when he was painted. Provenance formal...
