Description

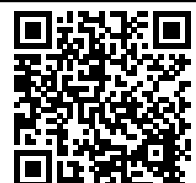

This is a fine antique French upholstered Art Deco lounge chair, with a reclining / metamorphic design, allowing it to transform into a day bed, constructed from solid beech, circa 1930, which has been recently upholstered, in good condition. Incorporating bentwood arms, the Art Deco lounge chair, is benefits from an adjustable backrest. The backrest angle can be altered by re-positioning the support bar to one of three positions. The Art Deco lounge chair transforms into a day bed by pulling out the section below the seat and un-hinging the backrest to provide support whilst horizontal. The Art Deco lounge chair has been recently upholstered, to a high standard, in good quality soft green slub upholstery, with a silk finish. The stuff-over seat is sprung; therefore, it is extremely comfortable to sit on. The Art Deco lounge chair stands on its original beech legs. The Art Deco lounge chair would be ideal for a home or apartment where space is limited; and you want the benefit of both an armchair or bed in the same room. The Art Deco chair would suit either a traditional or contemporary setting. The Art Deco lounge chair would look superb in a variety of rooms,...
