Description

Victorian inlaid walnut demi-lune card table This Victorian inlaid walnut demi-lune card table was made circa 1870. Demi-lune card tables are very desirable as they are not only an attractive shape, they also can be used as console or hall tables. It is burr walnut with the fine box wood stringing and feature panels of inlay to the top. The base has the quadruple turned walnut supports and the fine finial at the centre, the well carved quadruple legs then splay out from the centre. The top swivels and folds open to reveal the green baize playing surface. Imagine the joy you will have as you play bridge or card games with you family and friends as you sit at it. Not only does this Victorian inlaid walnut demi-lune card table have great uses it is also a beautiful item to behold. 91cms wide 36ins 46cms deep 16ins closed. 72cms high 26ins 91cms diameter open 36ins All Measurements are as accurate as possible.
