Description

Regency rosewood writing table This Regency rosewood writing table is of attractive small dimensions. It was made to stand away from the wall and finished all around, the rear to look the same as the front, although they are dummy not working drawers, unlike the front where you have 2 fine drawers that are brass strung. This elegant table stands on end supports with its legs with cast brass castors, the supports joined by a fine turned pole stretcher. The top has a fine tooled hide leather inset writing surface. Due to its size it can be used even as a lamp or side table and will add elegance and class to your home. Just imagine the pleasure this will give you and surely be the envy of your family and friends.
