Description

A charming mid-19th century mahogany apothecary cabinet of small proportions with an arrangement of 19th century and later apothecary/chemist bottles, and working lock and key. The door opens to reveal a recess holding numerous hand-blown glass chemist bottles and a brass handled drawer. The lock, key, hinges and drawer actions all operate as they should. The exterior shows some wear commensurate with age, most notably areas of discolouration to the top and left hand side; the left hand side also showing a historic repair. An attractive set.
