Description

A handsome antique King Size Victorian mahogany headboard dating from circa 1880s. In a richly figured mahogany it features a dentil cornice above a frieze of carved harebells over three panels. Originally part of a bedstead (the footboard) now makes a wonderful feature headboard. Because it was originally a footboard it may need raising up slightly to be a suitable height to use as a headboard depending on your requirements. It is of generous proportions at 173cm wide, so would work well with a king-size divan, or could even work for 2 singles pushed together. Construction/Wood: Mahogany Condition Report: Good condition. Beautiful patina and good colour. Wear and marks commensurate with age. Holes to bottom of legs where original side rails would have fitted. Originally part of a bedstead (the footboard). Because it was originally a footboard it may need raising up slightly to be a suitable height to use as a headboard. Dimensions: Height: 95cm Max Width: 173cm Depth: 12cm
