Description

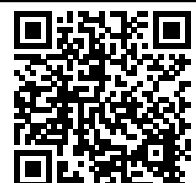

A good Coromandel-wood Lady's Dressing and Jewellery case, with hallmarked silver topped bottles & containers. Hallmarked for 1858 by the maker Thomas Johnson of London. The beautiful highly polished exterior shows the coromandel-wood grain off to its best. The brass bound edges protect the extremities from casual dings and knocks, resulting in an exceptional quality finish. There is a small cartouche to the top with the letters 'SDD' (possibly 'SHH') engraved within. Open the lid and the six silver topped bottles are presented in a partitioned red velvet lined shelf. There are three further rectangular silver-topped glass containers. A further lift out fitted tool-pad contains four mother-of-pearl handled tools, two pairs of scissors; tweezers; file; penknife; and a small folding cork screw, for scent bottles. The tool-shelf lifts out to reveal a small storage area underneath. There is a small pull-out pin-fold, and a pin cushion. The whole shelf in turn lifts out to reveal a larger leather lined storage area within. There is currently an oval silver-topped nail buffer in there (a nice addition, but not original to the case). To the left of the box (when open) is a sm...
