Description

Victorian Industrial Work Bench by Thomas James Syer, London now converted to a Cool Kitchen Prep Table/Island. Could also be used as a large console table. Lovely stamped iron frame with makers plate and registration lozenge. Attractive faded dark green colour with a nice patina. Solid marble top with drawer to apron and ample storage rack below. We have left the vice intact as we thought it could be used in conjunction with a cookbook rest, pasta maker or perhaps a pasta dryer...the choice is yours but easily removable. The wooden base below the marble could be painted too if so wished. A nice unique stand alone piece for a kitchen or workshop. Photographed with and without the drawer and the drawer slides could also easily be removed if you needed more shelf height.
