Description

Pair of Victorian burr walnut bedside chests This pair of Pair of Victorian burr walnut bedside chests are in fine burr walnut. When these chests were originally made, the cabinetmaker chose the finest materials before constructing them in his workshops. Price would never have come into consideration, just the quality the product would end as. At this time Great Britain was the wealthiest nation in the world, hence fine items were made to furnish the wealthy professional and entrepreneurs of the time interiors. Each chest is fitted 4 graduated drawers on a plinth base with rounded corners. The drawers with the original turned solid walnut pull handles and the delicate banding. Pairs of bedside chests were never made in this period. As bedside chests became an important part of modern living and people required pairs of bedside chests, cabinet makers would find redundant items high-quality furniture (usually pedestal dressing tables) and skilfully make them into stunning bedside chests. These examples are as good as you are ever likely to see, and the original cabinetmaker had selected the finest burr walnut to make them, as well as adding the fine banding. Imagine the pl...
