Description

Here is a fine quality antique English 18th century Georgian oak kitchen cupboard & associated table, circa 1720, displaying a lovely rich original colour and patination, in excellent condition. The Georgian Kitchen Cupboard comprises a cupboard is designed with two elegant fielded panel doors, boarded sides and a protruding cornice. Inside the cupboard are two fixed shelves. The left-hand door retains its original iron locking eyelet, which is secured to the underside of the shelf. The right-hand door features a locking bar, which is attached to the brass knob, thereby turning the knob, locks the right-hand door. The cupboard retains its original top, floor and back-boards. The table below boasts a two-plank moulded top, with a well-proportioned over hang. The upper cabinet is secured in place by a fixed moulding to the table top. The drawer which is constructed with oak butt jointed drawer linings and drawer bottom, runs smoothly and closes flush to the frame and is all original. Below, the table features a lovely shaped moulded frieze and stands on fine quality ring turned legs, which are united by stretchers, giving the item additional strength. The table fe...
