Description

Georgian style large mahogany dining table. This George V mahogany twin pillar dining table is of the wonderful classic Georgian design, this style of dining table has been popular since the onset of this style coming onto the market c.1790. The original cabinetmaker took time selecting the right timber to give this table the smart elegance a Georgian style table gives a dining area. The dining table stands on a pair of quadraple legged bases, the legs ending with claw brass toes with brass wheels under. It has square ends with rounded corners, this makes it easy to seat 2 people at each end when you have a large group to entertain. The top with a gently figured mahogany, with the elegant double mould running around the leading edge. Imagine how much pleasure you will have as you dine around this dining table with your family and friends. It is bound to attract much admiration. 305cms long 120ins 113cms deep 44.5ins 74cms high 29ins 182cms with no leaves in place 72ins The 2 leaves are EACH 61cms 24ins.
