Description

William Alister Macdonald 1860-1956. Watercolour landscape painter whose interest in watercolour painting emerged at Rattray School in Aberdeen. Moved to London when he was nineteen. Exhibited 1935-36 including 244 works at the Arlington Gallery. Lord Wakefield purchased the entire collection which he donated to the Guildhall Art Gallery. Essentially a London topographer in a style reminiscent of the Belle Époque artists Herbert Menzies Marshall and Rose Barton, he brought an effective atmospheric facility and an eye for composition to his tropical subject matter. Macdonald died at Pao Pao, on the Isle de Moore's, in French Oceania in August 1956 aged 96. 'Carriage and Figures on Westminster Bridge, Big Ben in the distance' signed watercolour, image size 15x11 cms, framed size 26x21 cms. A most charming watercolour!
