Description

This rare pair of early English Staffordshire figure groups each portray a young man about to enter a scuffle. Both he and his opponent are both being held back by two young women who are trying to stop the fight from taking place. One is entitled scuffle the other contest. Both figures are very well modelled and hand painted. They are of a very rare subject and came from a large private collection. Scuffle has had some old very high quality minor restoration and still shows some minor flaking to the back. Bearing in mind the rarity and good subject matter I would like to feel this is just a part of their long history and they should be a pleasure to own and be enjoyed. circa 1790 Height 16.5cm x width 11cm x depth 8cm £495 for the pair.
