Description

Pretty pair of small Edwardian era tiled planters or internal window boxes c.1910. Moulded oak frames with a curved top to the two long sides and original ceramic tiles to all four sides. Two alternating designs, very attractively coloured with water lilies in low relief against a pale blue ground. Note the two fish chasing a dragon fly in the lower right hand corner of one of the designs. With a slatted base to allow the plants to drain. Excellent condition. Dimensions: Width 37" Height 12" Depth 11"
