Description

A superb cut glass salt or condiment boat dating from the late 18th Century. This gorgeous example has extensive cutting to the body, a moulded stem and foot with a lemon squeezer base. A hallmarked silver spoon, with a mother-of-pearl handle from the Georgian era, is included. The boat is of usable size and would make a useful and attractive addition to a well laid table, serving as a salt, parmesan or mustard bowl. Alternative ideas are sauces, such as mint, cranberry, mayonnaise etc. Dimensions below. Postage and packing £10.00 UK £18.00 Europe £26.00 Outside Europe Condition :- Very good with no cracks or chips. There are a couple of very small fleabites to the edges, commensurate with age and use. The spoon is undamaged with no splits, dents or gilding loss. Origin :- English. Date :- c1790. Spoon hallmarks :- Birmingham 1811. Maker :- John Thropp. Depth :- 6 cms. Width :- 9.5 cms. Height :- 7.5 cms.
