Description

A good quality 19th century (circa 1830) French mahogany Gueridon table with original black and white veined marble top. The table consists of the original marble top, this being a black and white veined marble, with a moulded outer edge supported by a mahogany frieze with moulded edge below. This leads down to a finely shaped column supported by a tri-form base being finely carved in the typical French Empire style consisting of three superbly carved legs with scroll carved decoration, terminating with carved paw feet and castors.
