Description

We are delighted to offer this wonderful little solid silver tea caddy spoon made by Joseph Willmore in Birmingham, 1814. The spoon is beautifully crafted in the form of a single vine leaf with an accurate and intricate design ranging from the stem (handle) of the leaf to the different textures (stippled & embossed silver) on the surface of the spoon. The centre of the spoon is embossed in the form of a bunch of grapes with its stem conjoining to the thicker vine handle. Such spoons would have traditionally been used to scoop some tea leaves out of a tea caddy/canister, however, with some creative ideas why not try some new uses such as serving spices or even as a small canapé spoon? A full set of minuscule hallmarks are present on the stem of the vine handle. A delightful little addition to any collection whether be it for a display or for usage with a tea caddy and a luxurious afternoon tea experience. SIZE Size (mm) Length: 72mm Width: 37mm Size (inches) Length: 2.83 Width: 1.45 Weight: 9.8 grams (0.31 oz t) CONDITION Excellent Condition - The spoon is in excellent antique condition with no damage or issues.
