Description

As part of our Japanese works of art collection we are delighted to offer this late 17th century Edo Period 1615-1868, circa 1690 Tokuri or sake bottle, the charming vessel potted in the form of Hotei, one of the seven lucky Gods often referred to as the smiling God, on this occasion Hotei stands upon and clutches a huge double gourd shaped vessel intended for the pouring of sake, little wonder he smiles as he clings onto the neck, the vessel decorated in traditional iron red and green enamels of the latter 17th century Genroku period, a charming addition to your Japanese ceramics collection and a rare survivor from the last 300 + years of use. Provenance : The Tokuri bears remnants of an old sale label from Woolley and Wallis Japanese art sale 2004, Lot 1, £2,500 plus 25% buyers premium. Condition report : Great age related condition with stable old crack and firing faults. Approximate Sizes : Height : 8" 20 cm Depth : 4 3/4" 12 cm Width : 5" 13 cm Free worldwide delivery and a certificate of authenticity are included within the price of this item.
