Description

A very pretty Edwardian pendant dating from c.1910s, in solid nine-carat gold set with tiny natural seed pearls and faceted magenta gems. The pink stones (which test within the tourmaline-garnet range) are beautiful - an intense lustrous colour which really shimmers and shines in the light, complemented by the gleaming white nacre of the pearls. The piece is in excellent antique condition, one tiny claw is missing from the central stone. Size: 2.8 x 2.4cm, not including the bail. Weight: 2.8g. FREE INTERNATIONAL SHIPPING! Apologies but we cannot ship to Germany, any orders from Germany will be cancelled and refunded.
