Description

An early 19th Century rosewood work table firmly attributed to Gillows. The table consists of a finely figured rosewood veneers with a solid rosewood raised scrolling carved tray top gallery. This upper section with a discreet drawer at either end and sliding tray which would have originally held fitted silk sewing bag. (this can me redone at no additional charge if required) The frieze & drawers decorated with figured cross grained veneers with split bead & reel applied turnings. The table supported on turned collums with additional twin turned pillars supported on well carved cabriole legs with spade feet. The table still retains its original concealed brass castors. Further examples of similar tables & original Gillows drawings along with further literature are shown in the set of Gillows books by Susan E STUART. Images shows a similar model pictured on the front cover. The underside of one drawer bears a pencil inscription of J Taylor. TAYLOR, JOHN (1) is listed in the 1834-39 PL, P.274 (344/79). He may have been the Taylor who made a mahogany bookcase in June 1847 (with Herbert) for Murray Esq., a customer of Ferguson & Co., and many other pieces illustrated in...
