Description

This delightful and rare Victorian item is an elegant serving piece from the tea table. Similar in appearance to a preserve spoon (which would be a good alternative use), it is a silver ice cream spade. This would have been used for serving ices at high tea and is an unusual and desirable collector's piece. It is fully cast with a plain, shaped bowl and a shank which features serpents, birds and fruit. This unusual and good quality piece, is both decorative and usable. Postage and packing :- £8.00 UK £16.00 Europe £18.00 Outside Europe Condition :- Excellent, with no dents or splits. Hallmarks :- Clear and readable. Date :- London 1898. Maker :- Wakely & Wheeler. Length :- 15 cms. Width :- 3.5 cms. Weight :- 32 grams.
