Description

An extremely rare English antique sterling silver Surveyors or Architects tape measure. It is hallmarked for London 1928 with the makers marks being William Comyns. It has been beautifully made having a button mechanism that releases a winding handle. It contains a 50ft steel tape. We've never seen one before so maybe it was commissioned. It is in superb condition being free from dings splits and repairs, a light scratch. The tape is complete and the whole thing works perfectly. It measures approx. 3 inches (7.2cm) wide and weighs weighs 200 grams, including the steel tape. A superbly made possibly unique piece.
