Description

Antique 1920's 12" Wade Lathe. An interesting antiquity. Stand not included. This lovely looking and high quality antique lathe can either be on display in a vintage themed home or have a motor added to make this item into a functioning electric lathe. The lathe appears to work freely, the gears operate, cross slide moves back & forward and the tail stock moves fine. The lathe would be ideal for any model-making enthusiast, hobbyist or watchmaker. This model being the No2 Wade Lathe means it features the screw cutting backgear to the headstock and the lathe includes a period 3 jaw chuck by the maker "THE BURNERD" which also operates freely. Unfortunately we do not have the key for the chuck but these are available. Below is a very brief summary of this history taken from "lathes uk", a full write up being available on their site. This is an antique "THE WADE LATHE" produced by CAV Small Tools Ltd. of Portland Road, Hove, Sussex, England - a Company that had been founded in 1917 as C. A. Vandervell & Co Ltd. (C.A.V.) to produce war materials including munitions. After the war, in 1918, the Hove factory traded as C.A.V.Small Tools and, looking around to see what was ...
