Description

An 18th century Quianlong period Chinese export porcelain punch bowl in the famille rose palette c1770, the exterior decorated with figural panels with flowers and landscapes, the interior decorated with a repeating pattern around the rim and a floral design in the centre. Condition: The bowl has several hairline cracks running from the rim towards the centre, a couple of which have small chips/losses where they meet the rim. The cracks do not appear to be affecting the structure however. The decoration to the inside of the rim is worn in places, as is the decoration to the exterior where it has been handled over the years. There are no marks to the base. Dimensions: The bowl measures 25.5cm in diameter and 11cm tall. Free UK delivery.
