Description

Impressive pair of early C19th Regency period ormolu and patinated bronze candelabras. Twin-branch foliate cast candle-holders with a central 'budding' branch, raised behind patinated bronze studies of recumbent greyhounds. The candle-holder knozzles with removable bobèches. The greyhounds lying cross-pawed on a gilded ormolu plinth with an ovolo or 'egg-and-dart' cast detail edge. The whole raised on a patinated bronze base. Of free-standing form with all-round decoration and modelling. Superb bright gilding to the ormolu bronze and a pleasing hue to the patinated bronze hounds and plinth with only minor wear from light use and cleaning. In excellent overall condition having both highly decorative and practical appeal. England c.1820
