Description

I love the simple drawing of a tree, dominating the pink-red ground of this unusual but charming plain-weave salt-bag from the Shahsevan nomads of the Varamin region of north-central Persia. Made during the early part of the 20th century, the back of the bag is woven in undyed wool - quite a contrast to the colourful and simplistic front! Size: 63cm x 38cm (2' 1" x 1' 3").
