Description

Antique desk lamps have become much sought after in this decorative-driven market. That is why Culvertons are always on the lookout for good examples, such as this Edwardian brass, copper and gunmetal adjustable desk lamp. What makes this lamp particularly attractive is the blend of metals used in its manufacture - the subtle colour of the gun-metal, that forms its decorative base, compliments the copper-plated shade very nicely, and the two elements are separated by its mellow brass adjustable stem. To protect the surface it sits on, a burgundy leathered disc has been carefully applied to its underside. Now after being professionally restored, rewired and safety tested, this lovely antique lamp is, once again, ready to illuminate your desk while you work and play.
