This type of tray was used both on grand tours and campaigns, but also in wealthy houses for serving drinks. It features a good quality large front-loading tray, with shaped side carrying handles. Constructed with fine quality mahogany with a dovetail construction, it is reasonably heavy (a sign of quality) with an original stunning colour & patination. The base of the Georgian butlers' tray is constructed from a single mahogany plank (another sign of quality). The tray is supported by new webbed straps, on a good quality bar-shaped mahogany folding stand, with uniting ring-turned stretchers for addi...
