Description

Impressionist oil on Panel signed by the artist Adolphe Keller (1880-1968). The painting is mounted in a stunning painted frame and cream slip. It shows a view of an Estuary with a boat in the foreground with a man in a red coat. The painting has a plaque on the front and various tickets on the rear. Adolphe Keller was born in Brussels in 1880 and as a young boy showed great talent for the arts. He was enrolled at the prestigious Brussels Academy where, under the direction of Pieter-Jan Braecke, he was schooled in oil painting. The greatest influence on the young artist came from his subsequent teacher at the Academy of Sint-Joost-ten-Node, Henri Ottevaere who instilled within him a love of Impressionism. Upon graduating he settled in the seaside town of Nieuport and established a studio. He was soon gaining a reputation as a painter and was beginning to exhibit his work at many of Belgium's premier art institutions. Much of his work from this period consisted of landscapes and coastal views although he did also paint the occasional still-life and figurative piece. In 1914, at the outbreak of the First World War, Adolphe Keller moved to southern France, settling in...
