Description

A superb Victorian set of four matching silver salt bowls or cellars and salt spoons with clear hallmarks on each bowl for London 1886, with Victoria head, and makers mark for renowned maker William Hutton & Sons. Three of the salt spoons bear the same hallmarks and makers mark, with one matched salt spoon being hallmarked Birmingham 1911, makers mark for John Millard Banks. The salt bowls each have a low bulbous body, standing on three hoof feet, with beaded rims. They are gilt lined, a mark of quality. The salt spoons have similar beaded edges, and also have gilt lined bowls. The set comes with its original custom made box lined with magenta velvet and silk. All items are in very good condition, and the silver has no dents or dinks. Though originally made as salt bowls, the bowls can equally be used for pepper or other condiments. The gilt linings will protect the silver.
