Description

This Georgian period, wing-back armchair, dates from the second half of the C18th. The tall high back armchair, with deep side wings, rolled arms, all upholstered in patterned fabric. Raised on square mahogany front legs, swept elm square rear legs, all supported by mahogany stretchers. Hardwood frame. Usually as it is but this charming chair would benefit some re-upholstering and a little TLC. Dimensions: This armchair measures approximately 132.5 cm (52.25") tall, 79 cm (31") wide, and 65.5 cm (25.75") deep. The seat height is approximately 43 cm (17"), seat depth 46.5 cm (18.25"), and seat width 54.5 cm (21.5"). Condition: Please see the pictures for details of the items condition. - This armchair is in a fair condition commensurate with its age, and is structurally fairly sound and sturdy. Some marks and blemishes to the frame. The mahogany front legs and stretchers appear to be later replacements, and the elm rear legs the originals. On centre stretcher in the middle of the side stretchers, could be replaced but not essential. The joints in the wings are little loose. The upholstery is structurally reasonable and could be used as is. The fabric covers are worn ...
