This is a fine quality antique English Victorian pair of display cabinets, constructed from rosewood, incorporating brass gallery tops and astragal bevel glazed doors, circa 1880, in excellent condition. They are designed to be wall hung. Incorporating brass gallery tops, above a moulded cornice, each wall cabinet features an astragal glazed door, which open to reveal a useful display or storage space inside. The doors retain the original brass lever locks (with key), with the original brass drop handles. The glazed doors are decorated with applied broken pediment mouldings and flanked by decorative rosewood stiles, inlaid with boxwood, terminating on t...
