Description

Edwardian Chippendale Style Display Cabinet with Astragal Glazed Door Beautiful Edwardian Chippendale style display cabinet. Standing at 186 cm, this piece is an exquisite blend of form and function. The domed cornice, astragal glazed door, and intricate details showcase the elegance typical of the Edwardian era. Raised on square channelled legs, adorned with fret-carved spandrels, and featuring a pierced gallery under-tier, this cabinet is a masterpiece of design. This display cabinet pays homage to the Chippendale style, characterized by delicate fretwork, astragal glazing, and a commitment to balanced proportions. The Edwardian influence adds a touch of refinement to the design. The domed cornice crowns an astragal glazed door, allowing a clear view of the curated items within. The sides also feature glazed panels, ensuring a harmonious balance between visibility and protection. The cabinet features three frieze drawers, providing additional storage for smaller items. Each drawer is a testament to both the functionality and craftsmanship inherent in the design. Raised on square channelled legs, the cabinet stands with grace and stability. Gadrooned feet add a deco...
